Old Chief Pocotello, now at the Fort Hall Agency, in answer to an inquiry relative to the true Christian character of a former Indian agent at that place, gave in very terse language the most accurate description of a hypocrite that was ever given to the public: "Ugh! too much God and no flour."—[Laramie Boomerang.

"Too much absorbed in his business," was the comment of a newspaper on the death of a brewer found drowned in a tank of his own beer.

Shakespeare says that avarice is "worse than poison to men's souls, doing more murders in this loathsome world than any mortal drug."

After a man has been hugged nearly to death by Sin, he generally turns round and embraces religion.
